Colgate Again Defeated

HAMILTON WINS CLOSE GAME

On Wednesday last the Varsity again defeated Colgate on the Campus in a close, exciting game, the final score being 5 to 4. The game was intensely interesting at intervals. In the first part of the ninth, Titus, at third base, caught with one hand a hot line drive, headed for left field, saving a good hit. Another feature was Capt. Judson's hitting and base-running. The Varsity was considerably changed in line-up, Manion being in the box, with Capt. Judson catching, Allen at shortstop and Heidenreich and Titus at third base, with Drummond in right field. Manion pitched a steady game, pulling out of bad holes with remarkable ease.

Colgate started the scoring in the first inning. Coster made first on Allen's error. A double play at second and first put out Coster and Campbell. Dobbins made first and was advanced to third on Sturgis' grounder. Chapman hit and Dobbins scored. Buck hit, scoring Sturgis. Chapman was put out on Root's throw home, retiring the side. Hamilton scored once. Root was put out at first, Hallock walked and Judson's hit advanced him to second. Allen fanned, while Drummond made second, and Hallock scored on a wild throw to the plate. Manion fanned.

Colgate made their final two scores in the third. Coster hit to left field, Campbell made second on a hit to left field, and Coster advanced to third. Campbell was forced out, but Dobbins made first on fielder's choice and stole second. Sturgis walked, and Chapman made second on a hit to left field. Coster and Dobbins scored. Buck and Leonard were out on a grounder to Manion.

From this point the game dragged somewhat, until the last of the sixth, when Hamilton again scored. Hallock fanned, Judson made first on a hit thru first and second. Allen sacrificed, advancing Judson to third. From there Judson scored on a wild pitch, while Drummond was out on a grounder to second base.

In the seventh, Coster was out on a liner to Manion. Campbell made first on Allen's error, but was caught out at second. Dobbins went out on a fly to Root. For Hamilton, Manion made first on a hit to right field. Judson stole second, and Mitchell got a base on balls. Sarles made a pretty sacrifice, and Titus fanned. Root got to second on an error thru shortstop. Judson and Mitchell scored, thus making things even. Hallock went out on a fly to shortstop.

Hamilton made the winning run in the last of the eighth. Judson made first on a hit thru third, and stole second. Allen sacrificed, advancing Judson to third. From there Judson scored on a wild throw. Drummond fanned, and Manion went out on a fly to center field.

After the close of the first half of the ninth, an inning in which Colgate failed to score, the spectators surged out on the field and carried off the players upon their shoulders with much acclaim. Others started on a run for the Chapel bell, and that ceremony was not concluded for several minutes. Enthusiasm was rampant on the field.

The scores which follow tell the story of the game:

McLean Wins K. P.

SUCCESSFUL ORATORICAL EXHIBITION

The Fifty-Fourth Clark Prize Contest in Original Oratory was held on Wednesday evening, in the Stone Church. While never brilliant, the exhibition was consistently good; a fortunate sequence of diversified themes lent unusual relish to the program. The two orations on the same subject were diametrically opposite in treatment, and the contrast added interest to both. The award, to Charles Mossman McLean, '09, gave general satisfaction. Mr. McLean's oration was easily the deepest-sounding plummet of the six, and his presentation, at once spontaneous and forceful, had the advantage of a somewhat phlegmatic dignity, and of a very well-modulated voice. His triumph is all the more to his credit in view of the excellent competition; before the announcement at least two other speakers were considered strong possibilities.

The music, furnished by a small group of strings, was a great improvement upon some of the tortures of latter-day K. P. nights. There was a respectable audience, composed mainly of outsiders; a lamentably large proportion of the College men were conspicuously absent. In particular is this true of the underclassmen, whose neglect of the culmination of our Oratorical activities should furnish a theme for general comment.

DOHERTY, by faithful work, has done wonders with his speaking, which was a revelation to those who remember his Chapel appearances. His voice has always been handicapped by a blaring nasal quality; this was almost entirely eliminated, leaving merely a droning monotony in the upper tones of his cadences. At first he spoke rather fast, seeming not to find the proper rate until he had gone thru the greater part of his appearance.

His oration was steadfast and thoughtful, marred in places by too great anxiety for the oratorical effects in lilting phrases, alliterations, and the heavy, swinging sentence. His appearance, on the whole, was greatly to his credit.

KNEELAND was the only exponent of the conventional dramatic school. He has a decided talent for this sort of emotional oratory, and made the most of it in presenting his views on Shelley. He overestimated the degree of abandon warranted by several of his passages, and suffered materially from the profusion of pyrotechnics which resulted. His voice was not in the best order, but responded very well to the demands of his style of delivery. In his pronunciation he mangled one or two of the great names of song. His rythms avoided most refreshingly the cæsural break which divides each period in a steriotyped oration. His oration did not attempt to throw new light on his subject; he avoided all generalities, and prudently kept his work in small dimensions. But the oration was capitally done, and was considered by many to have an equal chance for the award. Kneeland is inclined to "tear a passion to tatters," and should beware of this tendency in future presentations.

LOVE contributed the "economics" discussion which always appears among the successful six orations. En Passant, the man who chooses the annual economic subject for his K. P., is an altruist of convictions; he is very likely, if an able essayist, to secure the coveted appointment, but in the nature of things he cannot attempt that heroic declamatory presentation which is generally characteristic of the winner. "Practical" oratory violates our local precedents, and is not to our local taste—de gustibus non . . . Mr. Love, however, is more successful as an essayist than as an orator. His transitions were abrupt, and he gave an effect of petulance in the rapid-fire ejaculations of his high, thin voice. He spoke steadily and intelligently, but showed the lack of platform experience, particularly in gesturing. His oration was somewhat commonplace.

MCLEAN, the winner, has been mentioned. He is the most finished undergraduate speaker we have heard of recent years, and is obviously long sophisticated in "rhetoricals." He approached the particular case, Shelley, by a preamble of excellent generalities on men of genius. His oration had a noble simplicity of style, and at times struck a very high note, as . . . "Where is the recompense of posthumous laurels?" . . . which Milton might have said on Clark Prize stage, had Milton been given to prize-stages. McLean's presentation is rather heavy, lacking illumination; his voice, tho perfectly controlled, is colorless, and at times assumes a sepulchral monotony. His manner is of a dignified detachment; he will do very little thinking for his liisteners, preferring, perhaps, that one synthesize the trend for oneself from the phrases presented. McLean well deserved the award.

MARRIOTT assumes a somewhat belligerant posture on the platform, but has the most winning presence of all the speakers now in College, and an eye which carries conviction. He talks with his intellect, thinking his way as he goes, even after all the long and soulless drudgery of drills. This is a compliment to their intelligence which the auditors appreciate. Marriott's manner is thus somewhat pedagogic. His oration was out of the ordinary in subject, but was overfreighted with platitudes and hackneyed terms of phrase. From his manner, Marriott might become an able and convincing lawyer.

RIFENBARK discussed in a very earnest and lofty vein a subject for which he had the utmost sympathy, and which, as he knew, must interest his audience. In the formal black-and-white of evening dress, small of stature, with a mellifluous expression of countenance, he suggested the apparition of a great composer, expounding his creed of sweet sounds to all Philistiana. The oration was a plea for the higher message of music, and was admirably written and presented. Such a theme always suffers by position at the end of a protracted program.

The program follows:

THE ACCEPTANCE of the Honor System by the two upper classes cannot be too heartily commended, and is assuredly a step in the right direction. The hesitation on the part of the underclassmen is due to a misunderstanding of the system—that is, they do not think it adequate to accomplish its purpose. That is a fault of the promoters, in that the system was not fully explained at the College meeting. Every man has the right of suspension of judgment until sufficient evidence has been presented to him. At least it will receive a trial, and—we trust—prove its worth. LIFE hopes that the Honor System will crystallize a new sentiment in the College, which will be better for Hamilton and Hamilton men.

THE SLIGHT ATTENDANCE at K. P. on the part of the student-body was very noticeable and most lamentable. This exhibition is the culmination of our oratorical course, and should be of great interest to every Hamilton man. That it is evidently not of general College interest shows one of two things—either that there is something wrong with the exhibition, or that the undergraduates themselves regard it in a wrong light. LIFE is inclined to think that the latter is the reason for a lack of undergraduate interest in K. P. We become so accustomed to doing things merely because they are required that when attendance at a College function—and K. P. is the most historic of College functions—is optional, we are inclined to stay away, on account of mere laziness in most cases. Let us bear this in mind thru the next year and make the next K. P. a great event, supported by the College, and not by friendly aliens.

THE VICTORY over Colgate on Wednesday afternoon last more than made up for the rather unsuccessful season. It made us even more proud in that this is the second season that such a glorious victory has been accomplished. The old Chapel bell rang the news over the valley, and every Hamilton man within hearing knew that it could mean nothing but a second victory over our old rivals. However we always have a tendency, when success has come, to rest on our oars and not think of the future—even a few days ahead. This afternoon the Varsity meets Colgate at Hamilton. The chances for winning are just as good as they were on Steuben Field, except for one reason, and that is that the College will not be back of the team, to support them with good old Hamilton cheers — we all know how much this helps. Whenever a Football game is played at Colgate, the College goes down in a body to cheer the men who are striving for a Hamilton victory, and do their small share in helping to attain it. Now, why cannot the College go this afternoon? It cannot help but do much toward securing another victory, and it at least will show the team that we are all behind them. All the attainment of such a purpose needs is a few men to start it, and then LIFE is sure the whole College will be on hand. Every man who possibly can should attend, and LIFE hopes that will be the whole College.

DURING THIS TERM, when our Campus is so attractive, many people take the opportunity to visit it on Sunday afternoons and attend the regular Sunday Chapel. These same people walk up the old Hill, and thru the tree-covered Campus, realizing more and more—as they go on—the beauty of our college home. Then they reach the historic Chapel, so unique in its very appearance—and they admire that too. Then they attempt to enter it. The steps and lobby are entirely filled with a congested crowd of men. In order to reach the interior it is necessary for them to push their way thru this crowd, which oftentimes is difficult, in addition to being always unpleasant.

There is a moral to this little story —and it is that such a thoughtless action on the part of the student-body mars the visit of people who, in a way at least, are our guests. And more than all that, it cannot be called less than discourtesy to them—thoughtless tho it may be. It is doubly unpleasant for ladies who happen to be attending Chapel. It is not as tho such a congestion in front of and in the Chapel is necessary. If any of the men arrive at the Sunday services a little early, it is just as easy to stand out on the Campus. Now, such a condition ought not to exist. It may be, and undoubtedly is, mere thoughtlessness, but still that is no reason or excuse for its existence. The discontinuance of the crowded Chapel steps is no more than courtesy to the outsiders who attend, and LIFE is sure that no other reason for its abolition need be stated to Hamilton men. It might help if each one of us would keep in mind those two words which help so many evil conditions: "Be thoughtful."

LIFE BOARD MEETING

UNION DEFEATS VARSITY

On Decoration Day the Varsity played a double-header at Schenectady and lost both games to Union, the morning game by a score of 8-0, and in the afternoon 4-1. The morning game was rather loosely played, abounding in errors. The afternoon game, which was played before a holiday crowd of fully one thousand people, was fast and interesting thruout. The Varsity, thruout both games, seemed to lack ginger, evidently thinking it sufficient to keep down the score. The new arrangement of the infield was probably responsible for some of the unsteady playing.

The morning game:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	R.	H.	E.
Hamilton	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	4	6
Union	2	0	3	3	0	0	*	8	5	1

Afternoon game:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

SYRACUSE DEFEATED

The Hamilton Tennis Team was victorious in the last collegiate match of the season, defeating Syracuse last Thursday by a score of 3-1. Captain Conklin, Osborn, '09, Day and Getman, '11, made the trip, but for some reason Syracuse had but three representatives, so that Getman was not matched. Captain Conklin showed his best form of the season, especially in net-work, defeating Porter, 6-4, 6-4. Osborn lost two out of three sets to Booth, who excelled in sure Lawford strokes from back court. Day easily defeated Thompson, 6-2, 6-2.

In the one set of doubles, Conklin and Day presented a strong combination, and by clever net-work won three straight sets.

The score:

Conklin (H), vs. Porter (S), 6-4, 6-4.

Osborn (H), vs. Booth (S), 6-4, 0-6, 5-7.

Day (H), vs. Thompson (S), 6-2, 6-2.

Conklin and Day (H), vs. Thompson and Porter (S), 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

The last match of the season is against the Yahundasis team, on the club courts this afternoon.

—The Freshman Baseball Team was defeated by Mohawk High School at Mohawk, 11-10, last Saturday. Because of the short notice on which the game was played—the Freshmen playing the cancelled Sophomore game—some of the Freshman players who had been especially relied upon were unable to play.

—It has been officially announced that during the absence of Dr. Wood, his chair will be supplied by Dr. A. H. Shearer, a Rutgers graduate. He also spent four years of graduate work at Harvard, and then taught at Trinity for two years. He has since then held a position on the Dartmouth faculty for three years. He will also have charge of the work in European History.

TRIANGULAR MEET

The Triangular Meet between Hamilton, Union and Trinity, at Schenectady, last Saturday, was a success in every way. Weather conditions were ideal, arrangements perfect, and the contests close and spectacular. Each college was represented by such a well-balanced team that the result was in doubt until the last event, and each may take credit in the work of its representatives.

Trinity, in the person of Burdick, starred in the sprints. He outclassed the field in both the hundred and two-twenty, the real contest in these events being for the places. In the hundred, Spencer and Wenigmann ran practically even, and were awarded third and fourth respectively. Wenigmann also finished third in the two-twenty.

Union made a clean sweep in the hurdles, winning first and second in both events. Colson, the only Hamilton man to qualify, got fourth in the two-twenty low hurdles. Union also won the high jump and the shot-put. In this event a Freshman, Smith, broke the Union College record with a put of twenty-nine feet, six inches. Baldwin won fourth place for Hamilton.

Hamilton's strong point was the middle and long-distance runs. In these, by fast, plucky running, Hamilton took three firsts, two seconds, a third and two fourths. Captain Spencer ran a beautiful race in the quarter. He allowed Buck, of Trinity, to make the running until the very home stretch, when, by a wonderful spurt, he passed him and won the race. Hatfield took fourth in this event. Abbott, who was tired by his efforts in the mile, was beaten in the two-mile by Travis, Union's crack cross-country man, who made a new Union College record. He had no difficulty, however, in holding second place. The half-mile was perhaps the prettiest race of the day. Coward, of Union, set a fast pace from the start, but McLean hung close, and by a final supreme effort breasted the tape, the winner. Knox was a good third, and Gaige fourth.

The meet was so successful from every view point that it is planned to make it an annual affair. Next year it will probably be conducted by Trinity at Hartford.
